General Crozier. It is a one-story building excepting at one end, where there is a second story for storage of light material. The Chairman. What was the cost of the building destroyed by fire? General Crozier. It was very much less. That was a lightly built frame building, one story, as this is intended to be, with a shingle roof, and I don t think it cost over $30,000 altogether. It was built at different times, so it would be a little difficult to tell what the cost was; but for the building itself I don t think the cost was over $30,000; but I think there was in it perhaps $65,000 or $70,000 worth of machinery. It was not all destroyed; a good part of it was not. POWDER DEPOT NEAR DOVER, N. J. STOREHOUSES FOR RESERVE SUPPLY OF WAR MATERIAL. The Chairman. The next item is powder depot, near Dover, N. J. For storehouses for reserve supply of war material. $24,000. Your current appropriation for the same purpose is $36,000. General Crozier. Perhaps I had better make a general explanation in regard to the powder depot. It is in a remote locality up in New Jersey, about 12 miles from Morristown and about 4 miles from Dover. It is the place where we store our supply of powder for the service in general. It is the place also where we make ammunition for the service....
